YOUTH WRITING WORKSHOPS

Youth Programs at Literary Arts are pleased to offer free writing workshops to youth as part of Portland Book Festival. Registration is required, and class size is limited. The classes will take place in the Rental Sales Gallery at 1237 SW 10th Ave. All youth workshops are free to attend, but will require registration in advance. Learn more and sign up at pdxbookfest.org.

EKPHRASTIC WORLDBUILDING (FICTION) (GRADES 9-12)

Facilitator: Meaghan Loraas
10:00–11:30 a.m.

In this workshop, we'll learn how to build a fictional world and add texture to imaginary settings. Whether our story takes place on a modern-day Earth or on a planet far, far away, a fictional world and how characters interact with it takes some planning! Using details taken directly from art in the space, students will leave the workshop with an invented setting to use as they please.

WRITING FROM ART (POETRY) (GRADES 9-12)

Facilitator: Amy Minato
10:00–11:30 a.m.

In this workshop, we’ll discover parallels between visual and written art, and use pieces in the museum collection to inspire poetry. Our activities will include practicing imagery, form, metaphor, and perspective to engage in conversation with actual paintings in a supportive writing community. No previous writing experience necessary! The only requirement is to bring your imagination and good vibes.

NARRATIVE AND SOCIAL JUSTICE STORYTELLING (JOURNALISM) (GRADES 9-12)

Facilitator: Bruce Poinsette
11:45 a.m.–1:15 p.m.

In this workshop, we’ll learn journalistic storytelling techniques and explore how they can be used to cover social justice stories. Utilizing examples from local and national news, students will practice using journalistic storytelling and media literacy to engage with social justice issues more thoughtfully in their communities.
